

Dear FCC,

On the interoperability issue, I am in favor of a free and open market as opposed to federal regulation. I believe that relay services, to be effective, can host a number of proprietary VRS services for their customers without forcing each company to be interoperable. However, please investigate whether there are emergency VRS services that can serve a variety of VRS customers so that should the need arise, the response time is immediate.

Toby O'Hara